Dollar Ain't What It Used To Be, but It Will Be in Janesville, Thursday

All the world for a dollar is being offered Thursday in Janesville's radio and still skeptical folks lament the dollar "ain't" what it used to be.

The dollar "ain't" what it used to be, the folks aren't what they ought to be and oh, my, life is too darned complicated nowadays for common everyday folks.

But it wouldn't take a dollar's worth of your time, looking over Thursday's Dollar Day Gazette edition to convince you that if you had but one dollar in the world, then you would not have lived in vain for that sum, whether a crisp greenback or a crumpled silver coin, you will obtain for your dollar's desire.

Possibilities of a Dollar

A baby girl can be made the proudest two-year old in Janesville with a dollar's worth of candy.

A dollar can make dreams come true for some little housewife, when she spies the latest rag rug, that are on sale at the cozy little kitchen stools.

A tired office girl can freshen a drab business dress with a dainty organdy collar and cuff set for a dollar.

A well worn pair of faithful slippers, the rejuvenated with sturdy soles at a total shoe dispensary—just costs a dollar.

The unfaded window in a rattle-shake house can be beautifully decorated with a new, wide, fully-ruffled, dotted Swiss curtains—do-backs and all, for one buck.

An unwilling boy can be made glad to go back to school in a new neat shirt, just like dad's—for a dollar.

With a silver dollar a fellow can walk into a Janesville bank and open up a savings account that will make his heart glad for the sheet joy of carrying a bank book.

You can buy three new records for the phonograph or a baby bodice cap, according to your likes, for the sum of 100 cents.

A dollar buys an eight-quart aluminum kettle or a set of mahogany candle sticks or even a

POSTAL INSPECTOR IS HELD AS ARCH PLOTTER IN THEFT

CHICAGOAN PLANNED BIG RONDOUT HOLDUP, IS CHARGE.

CONSIDERED "ACE" Had Been Leader in Pushing Investigation of Mail Robbery of June.

Chicago—Charged with being the master mind in the $2,000,000 mail robbery at Rondout, Ill., on June 12, which he took a leading part in investigating, William F. Fahey, post office inspector, was held in Kane county jail at Geneva today in bonds of $50,000. He was arrested in his private office in the federal building late yesterday after warrants had been issued on complaint of five eastern inspectors.

Fahey, who was regarded as an "ace" among postal operatives, and who obtained the evidence which sent "Big Tim" Murphy and his alleged accomplices to federal prison for the Dearborn street station $238,000 robbery three years ago, charged the arrest was due to a "frame-up" by criminal enemies and professional rivals. He will be arraigned Sept. 6.

The specific charge against Fahey is conspiracy with Max Greenberg and Sam Grant, fugitives previously named as ring leaders in the robbery, to steal the 10 sacks of registered mail taken from the mail train after bandits had halted it and subdued the mail clerks with tear gas and pistol shots.

According to inspectors working on the case, it is believed Fahey is in possession of a considerable part of the loot.

Closely Watched

Fahey has been watched ever since a few days after the robbery. Chief Postal Inspector C. H. Clapham of New York said. He stated that inspectors have followed him to places where they say he met the men with whom he is charged with conspiring.

Fahey said he supposed the complaint was based on his communications with James Murray, a Chicago politician, arrested in connection with the robbery and released on bonds.

Murray has always been a friend of his and he assisted him in his government work, Fahey said.

Zimmerman's Hot Answer to Blaine

MILWAUKEE—The alleged claim made by Governor J. J. Blaine that Fred Zimmerman, secretary of states, at times refused to co-operate with him, was answered here today in a formal statement by Zimmerman, in which he states that the only cause the governor has to charge him with failure to co-operate is based on Zimmerman's refusal to agree to vast appropriations asked by the governor but not sanctioned by the legislature.

Zimmerman's statement, says, in part:

"In the face of his own criticism of the law (emergency fund law) Governor Blaine, during the year, called me to his office and to my surprise asked me to join with him in appropriating hundreds of thousands of dollars of the people's money without legislative sanction. I took the position that this was establishing a vicious precedent and refused to sign, during the past year Governor Blaine and another state official, over my objection, have appropriated under this emergency law, hundreds of thousands of dollars without legislative sanction. My refusal to be a party to this practice is what the governor means when he says I refuse to co-operate with him."

Senator La Follette has asked the voters of Wisconsin to re-elect me to the office of secretary of state. Governor Blaine takes a slap at the senator by advising the voters to re-elect me to the office of secretary of state."

RAIL BROTHERHOOD HEADS MEET HERE TO DISCUSS RIGHTS

HOPE TO SETTLE SENIORITY QUESTION ON MADISON DIVISION.

450 ARE AFFECTED

Janesville Railroad Men Interested in Outcome of Important Problem.

A referendum ballot on whether they desire to merge the seniority rights of the Milwaukee Road and the Prairie du Chien divisions of the C. M. & St. P. (now the Madison division) will be submitted to all men affected on both divisions and was decided at the meeting of general and local chairmen here Wednesday afternoon.

It was explained by one of the chairmen that there can be no merger of seniority rights by the railroad without the consent of the men under an existing agreement between the men and the railroad.

Sentiment at the meeting was apparently against any merger. It was learned at 2:15 p. m.

Representatives of each branch of the "Big Four" of railroad brotherhoods were in Janesville Wednesday to confer with local chairmen and officers on the seniority rights question on the new Madison division of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway. The conference, starting at 10:30 a. m., was being held in the State Club. Fellows hall on North Main street.

General chairmen who were here were: George Finnell, Chicago, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers; H. Schaefer, Chicago, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers; W. C. Kennedy, Minneapolis, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen; and H. C. Beeler, Milwaukee, Order of Railroad Conductors.

When the Mineral Point division (Milwaukee to Mineral Point and branch line) and the Prairie du Chien division (Milwaukee to Marquette, Ill., with branch lines) were consolidated last fall into the Madison division, the railroad, under its original plan, provided that the seniority rights of the operators as well, left the matter with the men to decide. According to a statement given out at Madison offices of the railroad Wednesday, the matter was one left to be settled between the railroad men, the railroad officials and the organizations.

RECORD GRADES TO RIVAL BLUE BLOODS

In Interest at National Dairy Show—Arrange C. T. A. Demonstration.

The 148 Dodge cow testing associations will be represented at the National Dairy show in Milwaukee. A record, Holstein bull, Cedar River Canaan Paul 6th, with 10 of his registered and grade daughters, will be on exhibit, announced A. J. Cramer, Wisconsin college of agriculture. Each of these daughters, during their first year giving milk, produced 17,758 pounds of milk and 81 pounds of butterfat more than their dams had produced as mature cows. Herds in the Wisconsin-Kentucky Cow Testing association will furnish the cows for this showing.

Study Averages
Cows with production records that are the average for various groups will be an unusual study, Cramer says. A cow whose record is 160 pounds of butterfat a year will represent the average for the United States. One with a production of 190 pounds will show the Wisconsin average for all dairy cows. There is a big jump in the production of the Wisconsin cow. The average Wisconsin cow testing association animal, with a production of 275 pounds of fat. The cow whose production is that of the Wisconsin Cow Testing association with the highest average in the state has a record of 341 pounds of fat. Another representing the association record with the highest average in the state has produced 324.5 pounds of butterfat in a year, and the highest producing cow in the Wisconsin associations, whose record is 825 pounds of fat, will be there.

Share Grade Cows
Dams are being made, Cramer states, to have a herd of ten grade Guernseys and Jerseys which show the value of the average cow. The average production of this herd has been raised from 255 pounds of butterfat per year to 395 pounds during the time the herd has been in existence.

A convenient way to ship high class dairy animals is another exhibit which will help the dairyman. Exhibiting is Cramer's new method of handling 16 or 18 head of cattle for out of state shipment to be on the grounds for demonstration.

Individual members of associations are preparing to enter calves in the grade class for a cow and four daughters of the same sire. These cows must meet the requirements of grade entries in all respects.

BIG PARTY CHIEFS EXPECT REAL RACE

"Landslide" Talk Fades in Councils of Leaders; Battle Seen.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright 1924, by the Janesville Gazette—Special Correspondence to the Janesville Gazette.

New York—What is really going on inside the two big political camps nowadays will hardly be discerned from the optimistic publicity which the republicans and democrats are issuing, nor will it be gleaned from the confident utterances of the nominees, but the truth of the matter is that there is not any real confidence, underneath, many and various are the conjectures and hopes with respect to what will happen after the campaign.

gets well under way and the candidates have been named and ratified. Yet if the election were held tomorrow—its an oft-used phrase to express the actual situation at the moment—the leaders of the republicans as well as the democratic party would be doubtful as well as nervous about the outcome. The point of expedience is close. The inside talk of "landslide" is slowly vanishing. It's to be a real race.

Sometimes when the managers do not talk for quotation they give an insight to their real feelings, their fears and their true calculations.

On Line House
If the election were held tomorrow, said one of the highest in the councils of the democratic party Tuesday, "the result would be thrown into the house of representatives for decision, as none of the big electoral votes would get a majority of the electoral votes. The west is all split up. We may pull out in certain states, but it looks more then ever as if the battle would be between Davis and La Follette, with the chances of the latter carrying many states unless conditions change. Of course I am counting on Davis to carry the drift to La Follette, but I am convinced the west is lost to Coolidge. And it may be lost to us. That's the rock bottom truth."

From republican sources comes the well guarded statement that the La Follette tide is ebbing and that the election held tomorrow it would be dangerous, but that by election time the improved agricultural county would win some votes now inclined to La Follette back to Coolidge.

Strategy of Confidence
These comments on the situation and the kind of contest to be publicly admitted for politics is a game in which the strategy of confidence is supposed to play an important part. The politicians frequently think and do some particular that candidates are won by propaganda, which is only another word for artificial publicity. But they are not. Misrepresentation swings a number of votes but it does not do some particular that candidates are won by propaganda, which is only another word for artificial publicity.

Purpose of Act DEFEATED, IS CLAIM
Madison—The purpose of a resolution of the Wisconsin corrupt practices election statute has been virtually defeated by an amendment by the last legislature which permits candidates to make statements to the expense accounts the Saturday before the election, according to George Brown, election clerk of the secretary of state's office.

Under the provision this year, the expense accounts of candidates will not be known generally until after the primary on Sept. 2. This is brought about by the fact that the state department will be closed Monday, Sept. 1, and Tuesday, Sept. 2.

Under the law, candidates meet requirements in their expenses in the primary on Saturday. The primary purpose of the corrupt practice act, it is said, was to give the voters an opportunity to see what funds were expended by candidates before they go to the polls.

publicans, but they are hopeful that strong information from President Coolidge will wave their embourgeoisment, especially in this section of the country.

The Sport of Gambling
In a nutshell, the men who bet on elections are simply venturists. Individuals who enjoy the sport of gambling, for at the moment the political situation is so full of cross-currents that anyone who feels sure of the outcome has usually a wish father to the thought. The political managers themselves know in their hearts the situation is not a certainty for any candidate.

Book Six Events for Entertainment Course in 1924-5

With six excellent events scheduled, the Janesville entertainment course will be conducted again this fall and winter in the Methodist church, according to announcement made Wednesday by the pastor, the Rev. E. P. Chase. The course consisted of only five numbers last year, all of which were well received, and the venture proved so successful that it is planned to make it an annual project.

Bookings this year are through the Associated Bureaus, Chicago. Last year Redpath attractions were used. The courses are sponsored by the Ladies' Aid society of the church.

Appeal Decision in Guard Action

Madison—Appeal to the state supreme court was filed today by Assistant Attorney General Morfitt, in the case of the state vs. Clifford Johnson, hotelier, involving indirectly the validity of the federal defense act and the status of Wisconsin National guard.

The suit was brought to determine whether a member of the Wisconsin National guard is a state or federal employee. It resulted from an injury to Johnson while in national guard duty, when he was shot by a member of the National guard while on duty. Johnson is a hotelier, and the National guard is a state employee and entitled to awards if injured while in line of duty.

An immediate hearing on the case will be asked in the supreme court by the state, it is said. The case is likely to go to the U. S. supreme court to determine constitutional questions.

POND OBTAINING RARE SPECIMENS

Valuable Additions to Beloit Museum Promised by Expedition.

Beloit college museum may become one of the foremost in the country through the addition of rare paleontologic specimens being collected in England, France, Switzerland, Austria, Denmark and North Africa this summer by Alvin W. Pond, Janesville archeologist and lecturer, who went abroad May 24 on a mission for the Beloit institution. In a letter written from Villabona-Lavallade, France, under date of Aug. 12, Mr. Pond tells of his exceptional good fortune in making important exchanges.

When this material gets back to Beloit, Mr. Pond feels that his mission over here has been most successful," says Mr. Pond. "I have found that everywhere the heads of departments in larger museums in the United States are surprised that Beloit college has sent a special representative to Europe to buy material when other institutions have to be content with the little they can get by exchange and have to do it in the unsatisfactory system of letters."

Among the Specimens Which Mr. Pond Reports Having Obtained So Far Are:

Complete series of photographs and a complete collection of Flint Knappers, Brandon, England, a concern making gunblades by the hundred thousand for shipment to Africa and South America where the government will not allow the natives to use modern guns. The industry dates back to the stone age and the natives who get the flint out of the chalk do it with the same style tools and in the same manner as their prehistoric ancestors.

Part of a valuable collection gathered in northern Africa for the Institut de Paleontologie Humaine, Paris, including a beautiful mammoth bone which will be the only one in America of that culture (North Africa, Holstein). The Parisian institute has one or two, but outside of that there are none except at the museum in Toulouse.

Enormous trade with the government of Tebessa, Algeria, North Africa.

Prize of material from all the important caves in that locality, representative of pieces from all the various culture levels.

ARMORED MAIL CARS PLANNED

New Type of Coach Is Expected to Be Run Through Janesville.

Armored mail cars, of a type which it is hoped will practically prevent mail robberies, may soon be put into operation on railroads through Janesville, according to an announcement made this week. No official notice has been received through the post office department to officials here, but it is expected soon.

The department has contracted for 2,000 cars, armored heavily to withstand assaults, and equipped with numerous protective devices. It was stated that they have been delivered and is being tested on a western road. It has so far met the approval of inspectors, but further tests will probably be made to see that it fully meets requirements. Should it do so, the contract for 2,000 of them will be let. It is understood, Wisconsin roads will be among the first to be given the new equipment. It was indicated by the Illinois Railway Clinic.

The post office department has for some time been planning on putting into service a special type of car, but the spectacular hold-up near Chicago on June 12, when $2,075,000 in money and bonds were stolen has hurried action. Eight robbers, riding in four automobiles, held up a train on the 12 miles north of Chicago, a special mail train, and conquered a crew of 70 employees by the use of gas bombs.

Specifications for the new car require that it be armor plated against heavy rifle and pistol fire from robbers, and provided with a system of special locks which will make it impossible for anyone to get in without aid from those inside. Sills have been provided for the use of firearms from the inside.

Losses Are Enormous
Mail train robberies have been among the largest losses to the department, sometimes totaling as high as $4,000,000 per year.

A reward of $5,000 was offered recently by the postmaster general for the capture of a mail robber, and on last Friday a reward of $2,000 was made to a clerk at Orange, N. J., who killed a robber on a railroad station platform. The care with which the department encourages its employees to take every means of action against the criminals is proof that it recognizes the seriousness of the situation, and the careful and scientific manner in which the robbery usually takes place.

MUST OBSERVE ARTERIALS OR SEE THE JUDGE

Drivers of automobiles in Janesville are warned to heed arterial highway signs or face police charges, according to Charles Newman, chief of police. Prosecution has been instituted to arrest all violators.

For the convenience of motorists not entirely familiar with the arterial roadways, the following list of stop streets is printed:

West Milwaukee street, East Milwaukee street, Milton avenue, North bluff street from the north line of Milwaukee street to the railroad viaduct; those portions of North Franklin street, Mineral Point avenue and North Washington street on the route of the Wisconsin trunk highway No. 12 which lie between the intersections of the south line of Wall street and the south line of Highland avenue.

South Jackson street, from the south line of Milwaukee street to the intersection of Rock river; Pleasant street, from Rock river to the eastern line of South Jackson and Court; Chalmers street, from Rock river to the line of South Jackson street; South Main, from the south line of Milwaukee street to the south line of the intersection of junction with Sharon street; Court street, from Rock river to west side of South Main; and Center avenue from Western avenue.

DAVIS REPLIES TO COOLIDGE ADDRESS

Speaking without manuscript for the first time, during the campaign, Mr. Davis struck out straight from the shoulder.

FREIGHT RATES ON COAL UP SEPT. 10

Increases of 23 and 41 Cents on Illinois Coal to Hit Janesville.

Freight rates on Illinois coal from the field of southern and also northern Illinois to Janesville will be increased, starting Sept. 10, it is announced at the office of the traffic bureau of the local Chamber of Commerce.

The increase will be from $2.52 a ton to $2.75 from southern Illinois, a boost of 23 cents a net ton and from $1.64 to $2.05 from northern Illinois, a rise of 41 cents a net ton.

Cause of Increase
"This increase has been under advisement by the interstate commerce commission for years," explains James Campbell, traffic manager. "It is put into effect by the commission because the interstate coal operators have been kept out of Wisconsin and the Minnesota markets on account of the preferential rates in the Illinois coal fields. The increase is mandatory, the railroads being so ordered by the interstate commerce commission in order to equalize the market."

Protest Is Probable
"The commission had two ways to equalize the market," explains Mr. Campbell. "One was to lower the eastern rates. The other was to increase the Illinois rates. They preferred to increase the Illinois rates. The railroads have not asked for the increase. The northern lake dock owners will benefit."

There is discussion of an organized protest in Janesville and other Wisconsin points.

The price of Illinois coal here is expected to take a jump as a result.

Car Stolen from Unlocked Garage; One Theft Balked

Auto thieves continued their operations in Janesville early Wednesday morning, stealing a car from the garage of Miss Gladys Howe, 153 South Jackson street. The auto is a 1923 Chevrolet sedan, was taken from the unlocked garage. Some time later, however, it bore the license number C21,274 and motor number H17,840.

Thieves believed to have been the same who stole the Hawk car, attempted earlier in the evening to steal a Studebaker sedan from the garage of W. J. Jones, 182 Forest Park boulevard.

After failing in their attempt to force a back window, they raised a south side glass and gained entrance to the parking space. Both the ignition and the transmission on the car were locked, so their efforts were unsuccessful.

FEW VOTERS TAKE TIME TO REGISTER

Registration day in Janesville came to a close at 8 p. m. Tuesday with an average of less than 20 voters visiting the polls in each precinct. It was reported by City Clerk A. J. Olsen. About half of those who took the trouble to get their names on the poll lists were newcomers to the city or had recently changed their residence from one precinct to another.

Three inspectors of election were on duty in each of the 10 precincts and copied into the poll books the names of all voters whom they knew to be still living in their respective districts. Primary day next Tuesday will give opportunity for further registration of those who failed to go to the voting places yesterday.

The new poll lists are being turned into the city clerk's office. City Clerk Olsen issued a statement Wednesday asking election inspectors to report at his office between 7 and 8 p. m. Monday to obtain ballots and other paraphernalia for Tuesday's primary. He expects to be out of town the balance of this week, taking part of his vacation by closing the Wisconsin Elks convention in Milwaukee, and will not distribute ballots to the precinct officials until Monday night.

The city clerk has received a dozen requests from precincts desiring to vote by mail but has been unable to fulfill them because ballots have not as yet been received from the county clerk.

Michael P. Burke, Rockford, Ill., was received by Mrs. Ellen E. Burke, 183 South High street, of the sudden death of her brother, Michael P. Burke, which occurred Tuesday in Rockford where Mr. Burke, a former resident of this city, lived with his family.

An acute attack of heart failure following a long illness, brought to a close the career of one of Rockford's prominent citizens. Mr. Burke was born in Janesville, Mar. 4, 1852, and but a short time ago celebrated his 72nd birthday. He was a carpenter by trade and had been identified with the growth and building of this city prior to his moving to Rockford 25 years ago. He was married Apr. 4, 1877 to Miss Mary Heffernan, this city.

Besides his wife, Mr. Burke is survived by two sons, Thomas Burke, Rockford, and Edward Burke, Washington; four daughters, Mrs. Daniel Hanlon, St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. Frank Hyland and Mrs. Daniel Seigman, both of Rockford, and Mrs. Lee Doyle, Peoria, Ill. A son, Richard Burke, preceded him in death five years ago. Three sisters, Mrs. Bridget, Mrs. Mary and Mrs. John, are also living.

Saturday Last Day for Beaches

Public swimming beaches will close on Saturday afternoon, according to Arthur Wheeler, who sees no advantage in holding them open any longer, on account of the extremely small attendance and the high water making it undesirable to many to make use of the facilities.

The equipment has all been dismantled. Total attendance through last week was 14,852, and figures for this week will change a little, it is predicted. The number using the two beaches during the first month was large, but later in the season the cold weather and frequent rains were responsible for the falling off.

GAS GOES DOWN IN BELOIT ONCE MORE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

HUNT LEAVES FOR WAUPUN THURSDAY

DEFENSE DAY TO BE OBSERVED HERE

Legion Plans Gathering at Riverside for All Veterans.

Defense day, Sept. 12, will be observed in Janesville by all World War veterans. This was decided at a meeting of the Richard Ellis post of the American Legion here Tuesday night.

A basket picnic for all service men and their families will be held in Riverside park. A dance in the pavilion is planned for the night. The service will be jointly between the Legion and the women's auxiliary.

A resolution joining with approval in the defense day plans was passed by the Legion Tuesday.

Reports on the state convention at Chippewa Falls were made by Walter Krueger and William Moore, official delegates from the Janesville post.

Parker Talks at Lions' Luncheon

George S. Parker, recently returned from a round-the-world trip, spoke on his experiences, especially in India and Ceylon, at the weekly meeting of the Lions club Wednesday noon. Pictures, the majority taken by Mr. Parker himself, some illustrating the scenes following the Japanese earthquake, were shown to members of the club.

BOY SCOUTS HIKE TO LAKE KOSHKONONG

Troop 16 of the Boy Scouts under command of Scoutmaster Dan Vossie left Wednesday afternoon on a hike to Lake Koshkonong, where they will camp over night, returning Thursday afternoon. They planned to walk to the lake and will return by automobile. Advancement in scout work will be taken up and there will be a ball game at the terminus. About 20 members are on the trip.

Pole Ball Top Loner—Appearing in a "human fly" exhibition at Monday night, Arthur E. Olson, Janesville steeplejack, did a handstand near the top of the high school flag pole but was unable to proceed with his unannounced stunt of standing on his head on top of the pole because the ball came off in his hand.

MENTAL SICKNESS INVENTED, SAYS CROWE, FOR STATE

(Continued from page 1.) charged that expert with perjury. The prosecutor asserted that if any testimony that Loebe had an occasion fallen to the floor, freckling at the mouth, had not broken down on cross examination, the defense would have pleaded epilepsy.

"Loebe was stiff in more senses than one on that occasion," he shouted. "He was drunk."

"I submit your honor, that this has not been an honest defense, it has been built up to fit circumstances."

From the outset the explosive argument of the prosecutor drew the objection of the defense counsel, and an ensuing wrangle on technicalities called from Chief Justice John N. Lavery, to whom falls the duty of fixing sentence, the quiet and firm declaration that the "court will not consider any argument outside of the record."

Why Not Cite Law?—Mr. Crowe, once visibly irritated by the objections of the defense, turned vigorously upon the bench to answer.

"They have been quoting poetry and philosophy here for four days. I don't see why we can't have a little citation from the law."

"We have heard everything that is in the books and of a great deal that never got into the books, from the three wise men from the east, brought in by the defense; but nobody has ventured to give this night-disease a name," said Mr. Crowe.

He then endeavored again to describe the court proceedings in a case in which the defense was found by a jury to have been the victim of a "newly discovered mental disease." He was checked in this citation by defense objection and the court ruling, but not before he voiced the charge that this too, is a newly discovered mental disease—discovered by the three wise men from the east after every other possible avenue of escape has been sealed.

Detective Stories? Natural!—"They tell us that Loebe read detective stories and that's a bad sign," said Mr. Crowe a bit later. "Well, I remember when I used to crawl under the bed to read Nick Carter. Why that's not a bad sign, that's normal for boys."

Mr. Crowe charged that the boys had been advised what to say to the defense attorney in their examination in the county jail. He charged that the youths collaborated with the attorneys and the doctors in inventing "this weird and uncanny defense."

Crowe Charges Trickery.—The state's attorney read an excerpt from the celebrated Hubbard-Kovacs report, which one of the authors had testified the defense had intended to be read by the prosecutor. The excerpt said there would be "a certain legal advantage in the suppression of some of the details of the boys' mental processes."

"Who is the trickster in this case?" the state's attorney demanded. "Is it Mr. Barrow, who has charged the state's attorney with such tactics, or is it some one else?"

Mr. Crowe referred to four episodes in Loebe's life mentioned in the report only as "A," "B," "C," and "D."

"I charge that Leopold knew what they were," he shouted, "or charge that Leopold blackmailed Loebe with those episodes and gained his ascendancy over Loebe by threatening to expose him if Loebe did not submit to him."

Money Held Motive.—The prosecutor said, too, that money was the compelling motive in the crime.

"They gambled for such high stakes that not even their millionaire companions could stand the pace," he said. "They had to have money; they conceived the idea of this crime, not for a thrill, but for money."

"Money, money, money. It is all through this case. Yet Mr. Barrow said it was only a case of two poor little rich boys wandering in the dark, looking for a truly brave."

BOY USES CHURCH BUILDING FOR HIS HOME FOR WEEK

His home for five nights, John Meyers, 17, was found by police Tuesday night in the parish house of Christ church, Wisconsin street. Lights have been noticed in the building at late hours recently by neighbors, who notified the police last night.

Entering the building, officers found Meyers comfortably seated, reading a magazine. He was unable to explain that he was without funds and unable to secure shelter, finding the door of the church building open he had made it his home for nearly a week. The boy's parents formerly lived in this city, but moved to Kentucky, leaving John here to "take care of himself." He is being held at police headquarters.

Pencil Scheme Is Worked Here

Distribution of pencils, enclosed in large brown envelopes, seemingly to a picked list of citizens, sent through the mails from the "National Disabled Soldiers' League," Washington, D. C., is being carried out here. A letter, reciting the war record of United States soldiers, and containing a plea that they not be "forgotten," and closing with a request that a dollar be forwarded to the league, is enclosed in each envelope.

On investigation, conducted through the Monroe post of the American Legion, it was found the pencils are not recognized by either the legion or the bureau of the government, and is classified as being unimportant to handle affairs of veterans.

No request for the co-operation of the local American Legion post has been made and officials here are unimpressed that the work was being carried on, but with the sanction of the movement in accordance with the report of the Milwaukee headquarters of the organization.

The pencils have a special metal end to be used as a spark plug tester and are so perforated as to resemble the markings of a Ku Klux Klan mask, giving some who received them the impression that they had connection with that order.

The Pacing Suit

Withdrawal of the suit against the city and individuals concerned in the city government, the contractors and the materials company, was a step which was not at all surprising considering the situation in reference to the assessments and the completion of a large part of the work which is to be done for the city. Mrs. Heaney is to be congratulated on the action.

We have been talking of the security of the minority but the minority has been winning all the elections.

The Prince Is Coming

Of course we want the Prince of Wales to come to the United States if he wants to come, but the normal American is not going to go crazy about it. We have a few rabble, some representatives of a codfish aristocracy and climbing social leaders who are on the verge of hysterics for fear they will not be given a place in the front line trenches when the Prince arrives. The Prince of Wales, son of a king, heir to a crown which is more puppet than real, is a nice kind of a young man, quite democratic, very human, which characteristic seems the more impossible because he is a prince, and has disturbed the statu quo of Britain by his failure to appreciate the stupid dignities and honors and responsibilities of his birthright.

That is what we like about the prince in America. The day of the kings is about over; the day too of the princes born to thrones is nearing an end. We have nearly arrived at the place in educating the people so that each nation can select a presiding executive without waiting for the stock. England's king has a few tasks laid out for him. He places corner stones, refurbishes tradition and supplies the fusion of parade which our still barbaric notions demand. We have something like that in America in parades with gorgeous uniforms and regalia. But kings, as kings went in the days of yore, have gone the way of other autocracy.

The prince will be feted and fawned upon because he is a prince. He will play polo and be dined and all the time he will have less and less regard for the social climbers who will surround him. We hope so, and that he will give them a good snubbing.

In the United States we have a man in the chair of the chief executive who was a farmer boy. Over in Britain the real ruler is a man who was raised on a Scotch farm—a peasant. Neither was born to high place. We would be quite within our national traditions should we do many courtesies for Ramsay MacDonald were he to visit us. And as for the prince what we do for him outside the social side where real worth counts less than money, we shall give the prince greeting because in spite of his birth he is quite a human being.

The bootlegger must collect as he sells or else he might have to rely on the administrator.

A Lesson from the British.

How, when and where the railroads are to be taken over by the government, dependent in the one man presidential race sayeth not but they are to be taken over and that's all. Mere detail of paying the several hundred thousand stockholders for shares is not to be considered. The Pennsylvania road alone has 84,000 stockholders. Most of them are far from being blotted bondholders or bondholders of any kind—just ordinary citizens of small means. They are talking about this over in Great Britain—about the government absorbing the ownership of miles and railroads. But the Britisher has been looking over the balance sheet of the businesses heretofore run by his government and he is rather wary of adding anything else, even by a labor government. The annual report of these government operated utilities and marketing institutions shows:

Wheat and Flour—Closed out with a loss of $680,000,000, due to buying wheat and flour at top prices and selling at bottom figures, and to thefts, lawsuits, embezzlements and blunders. Bread now 30 per cent cheaper than under state control. Sugar—Closed out; loss, $120,000,000. Oil—Closed out; loss, $3,350,000. Farm Settlements—Closed out; loss, $1,000,000. Philanthropy—Never shown a profit in 45 years. Loss, $125,000,000. Telephone—No loss, but in arrears of $200,000,000 for ordinary repairs and extensions.

It may be that when the railroads have been legislated to death and hedged about by so many rules that there can be no competition or elasticity, the owners, a half million stockholders, will throw up the sponge and turn them over to the government. Then we shall have to operate them and in doing so add another burden to the public.

In 1892 the Populist party met in convention at Omaha. They enunciated this great and glorious

SPECULATING IN BONDS

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington—Bankers consulted by clients seeking counsel as to what to do with spare money have long been prone to advise putting it into bonds. To the point that bonds yield small returns and rarely if ever increase in value the reply has been, "Yes, but they are safe, and it's investment we're talking about, not speculation."

Bonds have been regarded almost universally in the time of conservatism in investment and the antithesis of all things pertaining to gambling or speculation. The man who invented bonds may well have been the originator of the "safety first" slogan. The widow with the proceeds of the dear departed's insurance policy should not think of any other form of security. The trustee of the orphan's heritage should protect the interests of his charge and himself as well by making only such gilt-edged investments. The business man who has amassed a competency was told that if he put his principal in bonds he could retire and never give money matters another thought except to remember to clip his coupons—and the bank would even do that for him.

There was no get-rich-quick lure about bonds. Advertisements offering bonds to the public never held out the prospect that they would double or triple in value in a short time or yield a hundred-fold or a thousand-fold on the investment almost overnight.

There was never any talk of increased dividends on bonds for the very good and sufficient reason that bonds do not pay dividends; they bear interest. The thing about bonds was their stability. You paid a thousand dollars or approximately that for a bond and you knew it would always be worth that amount, that you would get your four or five per cent interest regularly in semi-annual installments, and that when the bond matured it would be redeemed at par, which would be substantially what you paid for it.

Let the individual who wants to make a fortune in a hurry—either a shooting into a stock factory—put his bankroll into oil stock, or mining stock, or some industrial that is "safe" for a big bull movement. Or let him hunt up a big bull movement where he can at least keep his eyes on his money while he loses it. Let him buy land that he has never seen on the recommendation of the always optimistic real estate sharks. Or let him take his bankroll to the racetrack and at least get a run for his money.

You who are sane and conservative know only too well that buying anything but bonds is a speculation and that speculators lose nine out of ten times in the long run. But now they are gambling in bonds! And it's the wildest sort of gambling, with the most incredible profits or winnings that have been heard of since financial fairy tales were first told. Chances taken with but a few hundred dollars have won fortunes in a few months or weeks.

Needless to say, this lucky speculation has not been carried on in American bonds, national, state, municipal, railroad, public utility, or industrial. War-time bonds of the Imperial German and Russian governments have been the medium, and some fortunate turns have been made in German municipal bonds.

It is the same sort of speculation that was carried on in German marks, but with the rather important difference that to date it has been successful, while the misguided people who put their savings in marks never got even a thrill on their gamble. It is said that hundreds of millions of dollars were lost by Americans who bought German marks. Those unfortunate misadventurers, the capacity of German printing presses and would not believe that paper marks could and would be issued until they had no value whatever. This speculation began when the mark had depreciated until a dollar would buy several thousand as against a par value of approximately five to the dollar.

Today marks are quoted at something like four thousand billion to the dollar, with no purchasers at any price. Those who bought them at prices that were really comprehensible to the average mind have, and the poet observed, seen their fondest hopes dashed.

Those who are now rushing in to purchase German war-time bonds apparently realize the fact that these securities are redeemable in marks—not gold marks, but just plain marks, which means the paper marks with no present value and no prospect of value save in dreams more dreary than opium ever superinduced. However, from the moment when it seemed probable that the German reparations problem would be worked out to some sort of a solution some people have had the idea that eventually the bonds of the so-called Imperial Government would be made good or would at least acquire real value. The buying began in Germany and it was not long before New York bankers who had handled the German securities began to get inquiries from prospective purchasers. When it was practically certain that the Dawes Plan would be accepted the speculation got its real start, and the quotations on the bonds began to sky-rocket.

Amazingly enough, the shrewd Wall Street speculators who had been expected to be the wise ones who would alert the possibilities in taking a flyer in German bonds were not the ones who profited. The bankers who have handled the transactions say that the first buyers were for the most part push-cart men, fruit vendors, peddlers, and the like, all of foreign extraction, who brought in their small savings and insisted upon exchanging the real money for the apparently worthless bonds even when the bankers advised them not to do so.

To the amazement of the bankers the judgment of these buyers was vindicated in a growing demand for the bonds resulted in an advance in price that was slow at first, but soon progressed by leaps and bounds that were incredible. Bonds purchased one day for $5 sold the next day for $1.75. A seller "invested" a few hundred dollars and went away on a cruise. When he returned his "security" had a nominal market value of $500,000.

Three Americans took a chance with $2,000 each. One of them wanted to make their stake pot $15,000 instead of $6,000, but the others demurred. They took down $200,000 on their gamble.

Such are the fairy tales of fortunes suddenly and inexplicably acquired. Of course the bonds have no more real value today than they possessed when they could be purchased at less than the value of waste paper, and there is no assurance that they will ever have any real value. However, as long as the speculation continues it is probable that more fortunes—real or paper—will be made.

Of course, also, no bankers are advising their clients to buy the bonds, for bankers do not believe in gambling, even though some lucky individuals do get away with long shots. Even the professional speculators are still wary, although their mouths are watering.

lous flippant sentence: "We meet in the midst of a nation brought to the verge of moral, political and material ruin." That sounds like a paragraph from the platform of the Conference of Progressive Political Action. That platform says, "Life has become a desperate struggle for the average man and woman." In 1914 the Rock county farmer hauled wheat with a team to Southport, near Kenosha, and sold the grain for 50 cents a bushel, purchasing calves at 20 cents a yard. And no one heard of him breaking down and sobbing on the public's neck over "Life being a desperate struggle."

Mars started back without joining the League of Nations.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE KING AND THE POOL

Once there was a king who said:
"I have power over all things;
Whoever I may tread
Tremble great and small things.

"None there is to cry me nay!
As I will, so it is;
Who my word shall disobey
Dungeons deep shall visit."

One day spake his merry fool:
"Sire, there's nothing to it!
Men are easy things to rule.
Any king can do it."

"Tis the crown and not the man
Makes them bow and fall so;
Let me wear it and I can Win obedience also.

"Men are always seeking things
From a monarch's ladder,
That is why they flatter kings.
Let's try something harder."

"If you think the power is yours
All things here to master,
Bid the eagle nest in doers
Or the oak grow faster.

"Tell the song birds not to sing
"Till you wake each morning;
See, oh grave and mighty king,
If they'll heed your warning."

"Men may tremble at your words
True to you or traitor,
But all nature's beasts and birds
Serve but their Creator."

HOROSCOPE

THURSDAY, AUGUST 28, 1924

Jupiter is in benefic aspect early in the morning of this day, according to astrology. Mercury and Neptune are adverse.

This is a day in which to make strong efforts along all lines of business, since they should meet with success. There is a good sign for merchants and manufacturers who should find symptoms of trade revival.

The seers continue to warn the people generally to be cautious, for there may be rather hard times in certain lines of work. Speculation continues subject to even more than the usual uncertainties and real estate is not well directed by these aspects.

All the signs are to standardizing of life to the greatest possible extent, so that individuality will be lost to most persons. News that may be disturbing to the nation appear to be forewarned by the stars.

Europe is in financial straits of a sensation that will arouse the United States to action. Stock markets may be subject to sudden fluctuations and again the eager war Americans to conserve their wealth and not to risk it.

This is not a favorable time under which to begin long journeys, especially those that cross waters.

Stormy and unreasonable weather is indicated for the coming weeks.

Political matters are subject to planetary disruption, making for many complications and disappointments.

Persons whose birthdate it is have a happy augury for the year. Money and good luck appear to be foreseen.

Children born on this day probably will be very successful in all that they undertake in life. These subjects of Virgo usually have great personal charm. Girls will marry early.

ON HIS OWN PLATFORM

There is no one who would seek to question the right of Mr. Cooper to stand on a platform supported by the Socialists and communists or binder him in any way in the support of candidates endorsed by Socialists and radicals. That is his right as a free born American citizen.

Mr. Cooper has not lost touch out of the Republican party. He left the Republican party publican party by his own voluntary action. Had he been willing to support Republican principles it is not probable that he would today be the candidate of the Republican party and such a candidate without opposition.

Mr. Cooper shows a hatred for the Republican party and its leaders and yet he asks the support of intelligent followers of the principles of that party. He may be retained in office.—Kenosha News.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author.

STOP THAT WORRYING

From what I may fairly call the voluminous correspondence I have with readers—or rather the readers have it with me—one thing seems clear: by the time a lot of plain people feel they are sick enough to consult a physician they're as sick as the physician can hold out little hope for them. It is the old question again, you see: Just where does health end and disease begin? Is there a dividing line anywhere between health and disease, and if so, how's the fellow to know when he crosses the line, going or coming? When is any one sick enough to seek medical advice or care? Won't the family doctor or physician say he is just laugh at minor complaints and make one feel foolish for having consulted him, after all? Rather than run the chance of being caught in such a horrible predicament as that, shouldn't a fellow indulge in a little self-diagnosis and self-treatment, as long as the trouble isn't exactly disabling or of course the emergency (total) ailments, present of course it can't be of any importance, therefore—and just look at the great array of sure-fire nostrums, both medicinal and non-medicinal, which are available at prices to suit all reasonably fat pocketbooks. So why run to the doctor with a little complaint? Any fellow is fool enough to let this or that minor ailment, trifling, merely functional troubles, at least.

You know, folks, I pose as a health expert. I pretend to have some special knowledge of health and give advice about health and hygiene to readers who want it. I do not give advice about disease, either the diagnosis or treatment of disease. So if you feel that I must draw a line somewhere between health and disease, that I may separate out the queries which have to do with health and disease, and answer them, leaving the queries that have to do with disease to chuck into the waste basket. I do draw a line, but I draw a line for your benefit, not mine. I considerable breadth of borderland between health and disease, a gradual, imperceptible merging from one to the other, just as the green of the spring and summer merges into the blue. Of course if I were to draw any line mathematically correct, we'd have to taxid a battery of mechanical checkers and an endless chain of super for each minute here in the office. But I ain't narrow or mean about this—I make short runs considerably past the imaginary line if I think I see a chance of doing any good.

In the past it was the practice for doctors to try to draw a line between functional and organic disease. They do so no more, because pathology has taught the truth, that all disease is functional and organic, that first of all, but it is acute or chronic, or it is duration, self-limited or not, curable or not, preventable or inevitable. It doesn't make any difference what the condition of his health. If he feels it is not all right, then he must be sick enough to seek medical attention. As a plain proposition of happiness, the enjoyment of life, he needs medical attention. As a matter of business efficiency he needs medical attention. It is not a thing to gamble on. It is a thing to be sure about. The time to consult a physician is a year before you are convinced you've got to have one.

I am fifteen and very embarrassed by what is commonly known as chicken breast. I am getting rounder and rounder and I don't like it. I don't know what to do about it. I don't know what to do about it. I don't know what to do about it.

Answer—When you're quite sure, go to a doctor and let him see if he can find out what's the matter and what to do about it.

Answer—Touch the bite with a drop of iodine. It will kill the bacteria and prevent infection. It will also prevent the bite from becoming a sore.

SILK UMBRELLA

By WHEELAN

The Able McLaughlins

By MARGARET WILSON
(Copyright Harper & Bro.)

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

The scene is set in a small town where the McLaughlins settled and made rich farms from the prairie lands. At the opening of the Civil war, McLaughlin, a soldier, comes home on a furlough wounded. He had been captured and made his escape. He was maimed at home convalescing and met Christie, with whom he at once fell in love. Christie returns to the town and her mother and brother weep when the time comes for Wally to again return to his regiment. In a hospital and returns again in March completely discharged. He was sick and it seemed doomed to a life of an invalid. Christie's mother was dead and there had been a great change in the girl who avoided him. Then, when he asked her to marry him, gave him a rebuff. After that he avoided her. He grew to be an unrepentant Peter Keith. Christie was crying and growing thinner and paler all the time.

"Thanks to you! To my son! I won't can speak to see that when I'll be of you!" She thought a bitter moment. "Alex McNeil! He had come here to me! Wally, if any other man in the world had told me this, I wouldn't have believed it! You were always a good boy. Always! Before the war."

"I've not to eat!" he cried in answer. He rushed away, darning Peter Keith into the next room. The open air was some relief. If only women wouldn't take things so hard! Well, that was over. The worst part. Any man that might ever have to defend himself from Wally, after he had come, Isabel McLaughlin, feeling from the blow he had dealt her, sat with her hands covering her face. Nothing but Wally's own words could ever have made her believe such a story! It was even thus incredible. If only it had been any other girl but Jeanie! And her dead, Scavvy's death, till her son, betraying words of trust, had shown her, she would have gone to her in a fainting fit. Though it killed her, now there was not even that comfort! There was only Christie left, and her in such a state! It was not possible that she would be good, her own husband doing such a base thing! If it had been any boy but Wally! Had he ever given her a moment of anxiety he had not. He had been a quiet, honorable, sweet-tempered boy, eminently trustworthy. And now a thing like this! Still more, she refused to remember that Allen's responsibility, his extravagant pleasure in the society of women, of any size or kind of woman, had made her anxious many a time. That, even from the time he was twelve, had fairly glowed when there was a woman about to admire him. But Wally had only chuckled over his brother's school-boy love affairs, things so foreign to his nature. His mother, remembering Allen's escapades, expected the dead body to fall from him. Wally had been like that, she might have understood this tale, but he was not like that. He had never been at all like that. He must be some other man. What could such evil changes in him. That was what had made all this frontier sacrifice barren. Was it not true, children, that they had endured their wilderness, and endured it in vain if the children were to be of this low and common sort? In their home it was not to have been like that. He had the old country, with each family having a scholar or two in it, and the best teachers. Here they were all to have been scholars and such men. And now the war had taken away Wally's schooling and Allen's life—and not only Wally's schooling, which was after all, secondary in life, but that ultimate gift, his very sense of being a McLaughlin.

Some Americans might have smiled to know that this man, who had never for a moment considered Americans in general their equal, or themselves anything common, they were far too faithful to that. That lately it had never occurred to them that anyone else might manage some way to be equal to a Scot. Until the war, when some young McLaughlin had shown signs of intolerable depravity, his father had entirely extinguished the last sliver of it by saying as he took his pipe out of his occasional mouth, "I'm a Yankee." So withering was that reproach that no Yankee ever survived it. Now that Yankee of the Yankees, Harvey Stone, had been a very brother to Wally through campaigns and prisons, that denunciation was to be heard no more. But surely, Isabel McLaughlin, mother of her husband and herself, had not let the children think that they were anything common. Had she not hated all that democracy that justified menaces of life and death, and violence? She remembered the first time she had taken them all to a Fourth of July celebration in the Vankesets, a month, where a barefooted, tobacco-spitting, red-headed orator of the day, after an hour of bombast and of bragging, had shouted out his claims and in this free land were all kings and queens. "A fine old king, you!" she had chuckled again and again, explaining his folly to her son. A man like that had no idea what a king was! He must likely had never even seen a gentleman!

She recalled that Wally, once when he was quite a small boy, had plumed and unadorned found and identified a gentleman whose team was struggling in a swamp. He was a poor old gentleman, trying manfully to get an orphan stranded to a home farther west, and Wally had brought him proudly home, and his mother had "dand" for him till he was able to travel on his own. When he was better, they had called all the neighbors in, and the poor old gentleman had preached them a sermon. He had preached to the children about the Lamb of God, using as his text the lamb that went to the door, and they had never forgotten how gentle, as he said, had made God great. And when he had been starting on, John McLaughlin had taken a bill from his pocket and had given him things not often seen by the children—and given it to him humbly, for the benefits his presence had bestowed upon the family. Afterward, when his mother had asked Wally how he had known the stranger would be welcome, he had said he knew he was a good man, and that he spoke to his bounding horse, and surely in that wilderness Wally had known the better ways of living, and he had chosen despicable ways. She was only an old, tired, disappointed woman.

TODAY'S RECIPES
Linked Eggs—Put each egg carefully in a buttered dish and cover with seasoned, buttered crumbs. Bake until crumbs are brown.
Comforts—One cup milk, one cup sugar, two and one-half cups flour, two eggs, three teaspoons baking powder, a little salt. Mix thoroughly and drop from spoon into boiling fat. Fry a little brown, serve with cream.
Nut Cookies—One-third cup butter, one-half cup sugar, two eggs, one cup flour, one level teaspoon baking powder, three-quarters cup chopped nuts, one teaspoon vanilla. Cream butter and add sugar and eggs, well beaten. Sift flour and baking powder together. Add to first mixture. Then add nuts and vanilla. Drop from a spoon on a greased baking sheet, leaving an inch space between them. Sprinkle with chopped nuts and this in a hot oven (350 degrees) for 15 minutes. Bake in the middle of the platter.
Dressed Veal—Wipe veal chops and after putting them in the pan spread them with dressing made of one cup of bread crumbs, one tablespoon butter, pepper and salt. Bake 20 minutes or until brown. Serve with thick tomato sauce in the middle of the platter.
Milk Sherbet—One quart milk, one and one-half cups sugar, one teaspoon lemon extract. When it begins to freeze add the juice of two large lemons.

SUGGESTIONS
Did you "cover" try a cauliflower and pineapple salad? Try it some time when you do not know what kind of salad to serve with your dinner or supper. Break the cauliflower into good sized pieces and cook until tender in boiling salted water to which a dash of bayonet pepper has been added. Do not cook too long or it will get mushy. Cut and serve in lettuce with a couple of pieces of pineapple, a little mayonnaise and a cross of two thin strips of sweet pickles. Another thing—for variety in your potato salad sprinkle a little grated cheese on top.
A room with rough finish plaster walls and ceilings, kumskum in its color is economical, sanitary, uncommon and attractive.

WAYS TO SERVE SPINACH
The most beautiful articles of food of the country agree that spinach is one of the most beautiful articles of food of both children and adults. Here are a few ways to serve it so as to make it palatable: Plain with butter; with oil and vinegar; after cooking, chop, rub through sieve, reheat, add a little cream or white sauce. Mold in cups, garnish with egg rubbed through strainer; serve with salad dressing or as in suggestions two and three. Cream of spinach soup, combined with other materials as a soft cheese cream for salads. Cream spinach on toast, and combine chopped spinach with eggs in scrambled eggs or omelet.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred is happy to advise all mothers about the care of their children of any age, or on any subject which does not belong in the field of the doctor.

Mrs. J. A. B. writes: "I am an interested reader of your department. I have a boy three months old who weighs 15 pounds and is 27 inches in height. He is very active, crawls backward and sits alone. He has never been sick, but a few days ago had a slight fever and was constipated. Has two upper teeth almost through. Sleeps well in the daytime but is restless and fretful at night. I feed him every three or four hours during the day, plenty of water and juice of one orange daily. No night feedings. He won't take anything but water. What shall I do for his restlessness at night?"

Answer: "There is only one way to straighten that out and that is to regulate his diet a little more perfectly. You are evidently overfeeding the baby, though you didn't give me his full weight. The average weight for three months is 12 pounds. The next times should come at regular intervals of every three hours or every four hours, not every three or four hours. Such irregularity will upset the baby. The juice of a whole orange at his age might tend to make him have

SCALP DISEASES
If you have any real trouble with your scalp go to a doctor and find out what it is. A little time and a very little money may save you from baldness which is unnecessary either in a man or woman, from premature grayness, from thin, unsightly hair. If you cannot have medical help, find out what your trouble is and treat it as well as you can. Public libraries are sure to have books concerning the scalp and hair and general hygiene. About scalp troubles start with dandruff, seborrhea as the doctors call it, either dry or oily variety. The first stage is the only one; frequent shampoos with an alkaline soap, frequent massage and if possible violet ray treatments should be used. Dry seborrhea is the next stage; this is harder to cure. Violet rays work wonders, and sulphur ointment is excellent. This is nothing more than powdered flour of sulphur mixed with lard into a stiff paste. This is good also for oily dandruff, though it is an oil in itself, for the sulphur is splendid for any skin disease. If the condition is oily, use the ointment one or two nights before the fortnightly shampoo. If dry, use the ointment every few days and shampoo when the scalp and hair seem very greasy. You must use your own judgment about this. If the hair splits, singe or clip it every four to six weeks. And avoid light or hot hats. Do not be afraid of massage. It stimulates the blood and strengthens the hair. Use an antiseptic soap when you shampoo; disease comes from dirt and neglect. If dry bald spots appear in different parts of the scalp, go at once to a doctor. The treatment is too difficult for you to give yourself.

Wash—Heat the cream over a bain marie and rub in carefully with the hands. Beat it while it is cooling until all of it becomes a smooth emulsion. I do not see why any one fails to make a smooth emulsion. The instructions given with the formula are followed carefully. You may have overheated the oils or failed to bring the rose water to a lukewarm temperature. Toilet waters are always somewhat astringent. Continual bleaching for freckles will be injurious to the skin.

Anxious—The stings made from webbing are comfortable and in no way injurious.

Heart and Home Problems

By ELIZABETH THOMPSON.

LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT
Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl in my teens. Recently I became acquainted with a young man and instantly fell in love with him and he with me. He has very good habits. He does not smoke, drink, swear or do anything out of the way. He has asked me to marry him and I could not refuse. On the other hand, there is another young man whom I have known for ten years. He is a good, steady, reliable man. He has asked me to marry him, also, but since I have become acquainted with the other one I do not think as much of the first one. I know I could never break my promise to the one I love. Please tell me what to tell the other young man. If a mother encouraged would a girl be able to get married at the age of 17?

Tell the first young man that you love some one else. Although you have not said so, I can read between the lines that you had your heart set on him. It is not right to accept the first when he proposed. If that is the case ask him to release you because you no longer care for him. I think you are too young to be so sure of your love and would not advise you to tie yourself to any one for at least a year. If your father is dead and your mother consents to your marriage, you could get a divorce. If both parents are living the consent of both would be required.

TOO YOUNG
Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am in and have been going with a fellow who is almost 19 for about a year. We go with a "bunch" of other young folks and we never go to public dance or such places. This fellow used to go around with another boy a lot but after he graduated the friendship broke. Now this other fellow tries to go with me. He is nice, but not hardly as nice as the other one. I don't care to go with him, but he asks me for all kinds of things. How can I get out of going? The fellow I like never goes with other girls and although he has never said anything I don't think he would go with anyone. He is in college and I will graduate from high school in two years. I intend to go on in school and so of course we are not engaged and wouldn't think of such a thing. But should I go with other fellows, as I know he thinks a lot of me? He lives across the street from my mother and sister and so is a terrible trouble-maker. She watches every move he makes and then tells every one, also telling things that are not true. She also talks about his mother and sister and the other day she told some things before a crowd that I knew were not true. I corrected them right in front of her. But all right. This fellow was just recently and he will not be able to do anything for several weeks. Would it be all right to ask him down to spend the afternoon and stay for supper? I love him very much.

Yes, I think you ought to go with

Common Ailments of Middle Age
Are indicated in women by nervous conditions, irritability, melancholy, pains and aches in the back, dizzy spells, headaches and heart flutters. These trying conditions may be easily overcome and such symptoms controlled by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Rejoices Daughter Can Resume Studies
"Everything my little 12-year-old girl ate distressed her; even a glass of water would cause her to belch gas and she was unable to go to school for nearly a year. I brought her a bottle of Malt's Wonderful Remedy, and since taking it she is eating us out of house and home and is attending school again." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and always the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. Dinner Stories

Pat was walking along by the side of a golf course when suddenly he was struck between the shoulders by a golf ball. The force of the blow almost knocked him down. When he recovered he saw a golfer running towards him. "Are you hurt much?" asked the player, anxiously. "Why didn't you get out of the way?" "Am' why should I get out of the way?" asked the Irishman. "I didn't know there were any assassins round at this time of the year."

"But I called 'fore!'" said the player. "And when I say 'fore!' that is a sign for you to get out of the way."

"Oh, it is, is it?" replied Pat. "Well, then, when I say 'fore!' is a sign that you are going to get hit on the nose. 'Polvo!'"

A gentleman calling on a farmer observed: "Mr. Jones, your clock is not quite right, is it?" "Well, you see, Sir, nobody don't understand this clock but me. The hands point to 12, then it strikes five, and then I know it is 20 minutes of seven."

"How did you like the old town? Don't you find the streets rather winding?"

"I do. Why, do you know, when I first went there I could hardly find my way about."

"That must have been embarrassing."

"It was. The first week I was there I wanted to get rid of an old cat we had and my wife got me to take it to the river a mile away."

"And you lost the cat all right?"

"Not a bit of it! I should never have found my way home if I hadn't followed the cat."

TODAY'S MARKET

GRAIN
Chicago—Continued unfavorable crop reports were chiefly responsible for the upward swing in grain prices during the early dealings today. At the start, corn was affected by the news of a heavy yield in the north, which was followed by a decline in prices. However, the market recovered rapidly when general buying developed, values advanced and wheat rose to a new peak. The market closed with a gain of 1/4 cent for corn, 1/2 cent for wheat and 1/4 cent for oats. May delivery showing a gain of more than 2 cents from the early low. Later, commission houses became active buyers and with scantiness of offerings prices ascended to new high figures. The wheat market closed with a gain of 1/4 cent, with Dec. 1924 at 1.11 1/4 and 1925 at 1.11 1/4. The corn market closed with a gain of 1/4 cent, with Dec. 1924 at 1.11 1/4 and 1925 at 1.11 1/4. A merger of seniority rights, explained A. S. Wright, local chairman of the R. E., would probably take a great many men out of the division who are married and have homes here. They would be required to cover large territory, he explained, and would be subject to call as far as Marquette, Ia., and might get tied up on this so that they could not get back to their homes. This situation, he says, would affect 90 men.

Classified Advertising

All ads are restricted to their proper classifications and to the regular Janesville Gazette style of type. Errors in advertisements should be reported immediately. The Gazette will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. Daily rate per line for consecutive insertions:

Character	Per Line
One day	10
Three days	25
Six days	40
Two weeks	75
One month	125

Advertising orders for irregular insertions take the one time insertion rate, and are taken for less than one week. Advertisements received by telephone and if paid at office within six days from the first day of insertion, cash will be allowed. Advertisements ordered for three days or six days and stopped before expiration, will only be charged for the number of times the ad appeared and adjustment made at the rate earned. Special rates for yearly advertising upon request.

Advertisers reserve the right to edit or delete any classified advertising copy. Telephone 2500, or ask for an Ad Ticket.

The following classification headings appear in this newspaper in the classified advertising section, closely allied classifications being grouped together.

The individual advertisements are arranged under these headings in alphabetical order for quick reference.

PAY $36,000 FOR MILTON AVE. PAVING

Councilmen Order Settlement with Birdsell-Traction Company's Share $3,800.

Formal receipt of a communication from Mrs. Catherine E. Birdsell, 322 Western avenue, notifying the council she has dropped the paving injunction action began in her name against the city, payment of $36,000 for the Milton avenue paving, and ordering East street closed from St. Lawrence avenue to South Second street, were features of a special meeting of the council held at 8 p. m. Tuesday in the council chambers. The meeting was called for the express purpose of accepting the Milton avenue paving job and ordering payment. All of the councilmen were present except Councilman George A. Jacobs.

The communication from Mrs. Birdsell was read and ordered placed on the agenda of Councilman Boyd C. Gardner. There was no comment on the matter.

Figures on Paving Bill
The $36,000 order was paid the R. H. Birdsell & Sons company for the paving of Milton avenue from East street to St. Mary's avenue was arrived at as follows:

2,000 cubic yards excavation at $0.72	$1,440.00
8,000 cubic yards street excavation at $1.00	8,000.00
12,000 cubic yards street excavation at $1.00	12,000.00
3,113.75 square yards street railway pavement at $1.55	4,826.31
3,113.75 square yards street railway pavement at $2.25	6,995.94
62.74 square yards sidewalk at $1.80	112.93
175.00 linear feet curb and gutter at $0.80	140.00
107.68 cubic yards extra street railway concrete	2,571.02
Total	$36,000.00

Traction Company Pays $9,800

Of this amount, the city will pay approximately $9,000 for intersections and what is allowed for minor paving. City Manager Henry Birdsell reported, and the Janesville Traction company will pay $9,800. The Traction company's share is figured under the terms of an ordinance passed four years ago. Property owners are assessed for paving to the middle of the street and the street-car company pays only the extra cost of paving occasioned by its tracks being there. That is, it costs more to pave around rails and ties than for straight pavement, and the company pays the difference between these two amounts.

The charge for street railway excavation is 1 per cubic yard and for regular excavation only 12 cents, so the traction company is charged the difference, or 48 cents a yard. The regular charge for paving is $1.05 a square yard, and $2.25 a yard for street railway paving. The traction company pays the 20 cents a yard difference on this, also $12 a cubic yard for extra concrete underneath the ties.

Following are the figures showing how the Janesville Traction company's share is arrived at:

618.7 cubic yards of excavation at $0.48	$298.98
107.68 cubic yards excavation at $1.00	107.68
3,113.75 square yards paving at $0.80	2,491.00
107.68 cubic yards street railway paving at $12.00	12,921.60
Total	$29,818.66

The payment of the Birdsell company for Milton avenue was ordered upon recommendation of the committee of public works and upon resolution of Councilman William McCue. Councilman McCue also offered the motion that one block of East street be closed, as petitioned for by the property owners.

The laboratory made free analyses of specimens sent in for various diseases. Branch laboratories are maintained at Beloit, Kenosha, Green Bay, Oshkosh, Rhinelander, Superior, and Wausau.

TWO ROUGHNECKS SENTENCED TO WAUPUN
Oshkosh—Steve Lipocky and Joe Stahula, Chicago youths, aged 16, were sentenced to 10 years in the state prison at Waupun by Judge A. H. Goss for an attack upon Richard Penavals, also of Chicago, about a month ago. The two boys had an automobile which they had stolen. They had been asked for a ride in his car, with the intent to possess it. Without warning, Lipocky attacked Penavals with a heavy wrench, but the older man succeeded in stopping his car and, although badly hurt on the head, he grappled with the two.

Mosquitoes of Wisconsin Just Bite for Pleasure, but Leave Streak of Blood

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Madison—A veritable army of mosquitoes is sweeping Wisconsin, making life miserable for many tourists and residents, according to C. M. Baker, state sanitary engineer. The common slogan of "swat the fly" has turned into "swat the mosquito," health officers report. There is nothing alarming in the presence of the pests, it is stated, as far as health conditions are concerned. Engineer Baker attributes the prevalence of swarms of the pests to the continued wet weather. Stagnant water and many lakes have made the state a favorable breeding place for the insects. Bites for Pleasure. Fortunately, Mr. Baker states, the mosquito so common in Wisconsin is not a disease carrier. It is merely a common mosquito, he says, which bites for the pleasure of biting the human. The sanitary engineer further reports that there is no danger of an epidemic as result of the presence of many mosquitoes. Reports received at the health department indicate that the pests are in greater numbers than in a number of years past. The health officials declare that the advance of the pests probably will continue until cold weather comes. As for remedies, health officials advise draining all pools of water, emptying of all cans and barrels containing rain water and general cleaning of premises where the insects are likely to breed. It is also advisable to use oil to cover pools of water and lakes, if such is available. Cleaning of lake shores is another measure advised.

For the discussion of progress of the membership campaign being conducted by the Moose lodge, a special meeting will be held Thursday night in the club room, according to W. L. Doolittle, Rockford, deputy district supervisor, in charge of the drive. A luncheon will be served.

FREAR ASSAILS MELLON CONTROL

Eau Claire Congressman Says Treasury Head Is "Big Gun" in Washington.

Madison—Moneyed interests' and especially Andrew Mellon, secretary of the treasury, the subject of one of his attacks, Congressman James A. Frear, Eau Claire, supporting Congressman Henry Allen Cooper, spoke before an audience of 60 at the Opera theater Tuesday night, showing the alleged manner in which both of the larger political parties drew the bulk of their campaign funds from Wall street.

Scoring the term "regular" in politics, Congressman Frear announced himself as thoroughly republican, but as one having the interests of those whom he represented at heart and supporting men whom he believed would do the most for them in the way of legislation, which the source was republican or democratic.

Reviews Cooper Record. His record and that of Congressman Cooper during the years which they have been in congress were reviewed, with special emphasis on their attitude toward the tariff, revenue, ship subsidy, and adjusted compensation bills. The constant refusal of Secretary Mellon to enforce the law, he contended, has already cost millions. The expenditure of public money is practically controlled by him, it was charged, since he is always supported by executive action.

Mellon, through his commercial enterprises, has a daily income of as much as his salary from his government office amounts to in a year, it was stated, and his enforcement of the law is entirely influenced by his own interests and those of the house of Morgan and other large companies. The tariff bill has especially suffered from this attitude, Mr. Frear said.

Assails Mellon Control. It was by the advice of Mr. Mellon that President Harding vetoed the first golded bonus bill, and through his influence over President Coolidge that it was again vetoed at the last session, he stated in speaking of what he considers to be the almost unlimited power of one man whom he characterizes as practically controlling the government through his control of the purse-strings.

Considerable time was spent in the discussion of the part the Wisconsin legislators played in the drafting and passage of the tax reduction bill and soldier's compensation bill against the opposition of the administration.

He briefly referred to the Muskegon proposition, and took occasion to mention Henry Ford as "part of the time a 'regular' democrat and the rest of the time a 'regular' republican."

Radical Against "Regulars." A flutter of applause came from the audience when the speaker declared that "the man who had carried the state by 200,000 last election will carry the state by that much again."

Saying that he had been charged with being "radical," Congressman Frear announced himself to be "radical," that is radical against regularity in politics. Any "rule-book" politician, he said, might vote "regular."

Muskegon—There will be a lawn social at the Glen Clark home Friday night this week under the auspices of the ladies of the Methodist church, to which the public is invited.
